

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method for enhancing information derived from acoustically inspected samples comprises deriving an acoustic image of a sample, and generating a visual superposition of one or more additional images. The additional images are selected from the group consisting of an optical image, a second acoustic image in a different sized field of view from said acoustic image, an infrared image, an X-ray image, and an electron beam image.